IT is satisfactory to be able to discern some signs that an interest in Eastern affairs is 2794 slowly being awakened in the United King-2849dom. The culpable indifference to and the equally reprehensible ignorance of any coun-3020 try outside the bounds of the small continent of Europe which has until recently pre-3188 vailed in Great Britain is as ead as it is unaccountable. Seeing that the bulk of the people of the United Kingdom subsist by the profits on foreign trade, that the great towns have become immense workshops in which goods are manufactured for the mar-3639 kets of the world, and that with an ever in-3694 creasing population it is incumbent upon them not only to preserve these markets but also to open up fresh ones wherever possible, 3918it is astounding that so much apathy should 4002 4010 4018 4027 exi. The combined ignorance and indiffercace before alluded to, however, have served not only to check all enterprise but have in-4234 4243 4250 dubitably led to the absolute decline of British 4306 trade in many directions. The German was Austrian manufacturers make a careful study 4458 4466 4474 of the requirements of the various foreign 4506 4514 4522 4530 markets, keep themselves accurately inform-4621 4627 4636 4642 ed of all that is going on, and with patient and commendable thrift succeed in turning 4757 ish manufacturers can manage to produce 4903 4910 4919 4924 them. The result is that German trade has vears been steadily growing 5095 while that of Great Britain has for some 5151 time been regularly declining. This is the case in the Far East as well as in other 5294 5303 5310 5318 countries. In China and Japan German 5349 5358 5366 5373 trade not only keeps up to its old level but 5431 shows a considerable increase; English 5518 5527 5534 5543 trade, on the other band, exhibits a sensible reduction. Even in shipbuilding the Ger-5598 mans are now proving formidable rivals to 5682 5690 5698 5706 5738 5747 5754 5762 the great firms on the Clyde. The French are also striving to secure some of the unopened markets of the world, and seem in-5979 5986 clined to do their best to close them to Eaglish trade by imposing differential duties in favour of French products. Rather late in the day, but not too late to do some good let us hope, the British manu. facturers and merchants are slowly beginning to wake up to the fact-brought vividly to their notice at last by theserious depression of 6599 6604 trade—that they no longer have the monopoly they formerly possessed of certain markets, 6766 6774 and that if they are to hold their own in the race with other commercial peoples they must shake off their sloth, work harder, give more for the money, economiss in all directions, 7029 7037 7046 7053 and at the same time develop more enterprise. It was owing, doubtless, to these convictions pearance. The ship was immediately put back 7206 7214 7223 that the London Chamber of Commerce roused 7270 7277 themselves to back up Mr. Colquinous's railway schome in Burmah, Siam, and 7436 7446 Western China. They see the time has come 7495 7502 when something must be done. They must 7599 7606 7613 act unless they wish to see Upper Burmah 7671 and the Shan States slip into the French grusp; they must exercise their influence on the British Government to prevent French 8034 8042 8050 8058 first by French enterprise. It is high time that the British youth should be taught more of the countries and the peoples with whom British commerce is now conducted; it is also time that special efforts should be made to open the eyes of the British operatives to the necessity of Acting Chief Accountant, helping their employers to compete with foreign industries. Fowler ran into the station and procured the assistance of the constables there. A telegram was also sent to the Central Station, and Captain Superintendent Deane and Chief Inspector Grey at once proceeded to the spot with two separate parties of police of about twenty each. The greatest excitement prevailed for some time, but the appearance of this large body of police prevented any more actual mischief being done. Three o the men who assaulted Fowler were arrested amongst them being one of the leading bearers of the dragon. The other bearers, whon these men were taken up, followed them to the Station, leaving the dragon to look after himself in the road, where he remained for a considerable time without attention. Finally, we believe, the disorganised procession was got together again and
